Wiley will publish the memoir MATRIX INTELLIGENCE: Remote Viewing Cases from the World's Premier Psychic Spy by Major Ed Dames in November 2010. A decorated military intelligence officer and former member of the controversial NSA-ARMY-sponsored Psychic Espionage Unit, Dames is the country's foremost proponent of the psychic practice known as "remote viewing" -- an intelligence gathering technique whose practitioners can see events from a distance anywhere in time and space.

MATRIX INTELLIGENCE will take readers behind the scenes of Dames' most fascinating and offbeat cases applying his unique detective skills to the most baffling military Black Ops in modern times, as well as tackling mysteries so unusual and gruesome, they could be ripped from the darkest recesses of our imaginations. MATRIX INTELLIGENCE will also explore the often traumatic past that helped shape his life, a life that led a self-described wild child from the backwoods of New Jersey into the company of presidents, princes and movie stars.

MATRIX INTELLIGENCE is co-authored by Joel Harry Newman, a former staff reporter/editor for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner and Adweek magazine and freelance contributor to such publications as the Los Angeles Times Magazine, Details, PDN, and The Hollywood Reporter. His screenwork includes story editor on such hit motion pictures as "John Carpenter's Vampires" and "Arachnophobia" and "Hollowman."
